

Igniting Learning Journeys
啟育學習旅程

Dear Friend of CDC,

Welcome to our first newsletter of the year! 2020 has been a bit of a stop-start year thus far, but that doesn't mean the learning has to stop! Whilst there is a temporary suspension on group programmes to prevent the spread of the novel coronavirus, the CDC has been sending activity packs to parents to encourage learning at home.

And that's why we're dedicating this edition of the newsletter to all things about home learning. Starting with our feature article on how 'home can be fun', written collaboratively by our teachers and therapists, the article takes an in-depth look at how you can maximise your child's learning in the home environment. Along with our feature article, we've got even more 'SEN Tips' looking at various aspects of home learning, exploring different activities your child can try, systems you can use for your child and how you and your child can cope with changes in routine. These articles are taken from our website - you can find more Parent Tips here.

We've also got some exciting events below in the 'Upcoming Events' section and if you would like to support the CDC, be sure to check out this exclusive offer on a range of wines from Castello del Vino.

SEN Tips

Language, Learning and the Home

Many everyday situations can be turned into language-rich learning experiences that can also facilitate the bond between child and caregiver. Find out some ideas that you could try at home!

Using a Token System at Home!

A token economy system is a way of recognising, promoting and rewarding behaviour. Learn how to use this system to effectively engage your child in their home learning.

Children Can Help!

According to child development experts, giving children responsibilities at home can help their holistic development. Discover some example activities that your child could try at home.

Handling Routines, Coping With Changes

With the current situation in Hong Kong, maybe your child's routine is increasingly more inconsistent and unpredictable. Find out ways of coping with these changes and handling routines.
